RUSSIA WILL REMAIN STRICTLY NEUTRAL IF CONDITION OBSERVED

Demands That Great Britain and France Refrain From Warlike Activities in Balkan and Black Sea Zones—Ready to Engage in Suggested War Trade Negotiations

LONDON, Sept. 28 (CP-Havas).—Soviet Russia has informed Great Britain that Russian neutrality toward the war will be strictly observed as long as Great Britain and France refrain from belligerent activities in the Balkan and Black Sea zones, authoritative sources reported tonight.

This was the gist, according to these sources, of the reply given yesterday by Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky to Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax in answer to the latter's demands for clarification of the Kremlin's position in the present war.

As for possible peace overtures which many expect the Reich to launch, Maisky was reported to have said Russia would not co-operate with the Germans to the extent hoped for by the Nazis.

This, it was believed here, would mean that Russia, in case Nazi peace hopes failed through rejection by the Allies, would not go so far as to take a position against the democracies unless the Allies attempted to bring the war to the Balkan-Black Sea region.

In the economic sphere, moreover, Maisky told Lord Halifax Russia would be ready for war trade negotiations suggested by Britain, provided that London makes concrete proposals and shows a "benevolent" attitude.

ANXIOUS FOR MISSION
Russia was believed anxious that Britain not only send a trade mission to Moscow, but that this mission be headed by a very important Government official, such as the Board of Trade President, Oliver Stanley, or someone of even higher Cabinet rank.

In its own expanding sphere of influence, according to the most reliable diplomatic information, Soviet Russia, during current negotiations in Moscow with the German, Estonian, Turkish and Bulgarian officials, was driving at the following goals:

1. Creation of a Rumanian-Yugoslav-Bulgarian bloc in the Balkans.

PREPARING FOR CANADIAN ARMY

Committees in London to Make Ready for Arrival Of Overseas Force

LONDON, Sept. 28 (CP).—Prominent Canadians residing in Great Britain today set up two committees to undertake preparatory work, if and when it arrives, will find everything in readiness for its comfort and welfare.

One committee will co-ordinate the Red Cross effort of Canadians who live in the United Kingdom; the other will co-ordinate activities of Canadian organizations working for the comfort and welfare of Canadian soldiers. Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, former Prime Minister, is on both committees, with a group of banking and industrial leaders in the Canadian community.

"CLIVEN" FOR HOSPITAL

The Red Cross committee will have at its disposal the famous country home, "Cliven," owned by Viscount and Lady Astor. Mr. Bennett announced the Astors had offered the home as a Canadian hospital, as they did during the last war. He tentatively accepted, he said, and has asked confirmation from Red Cross headquarters in Toronto.

(In Toronto it was announced the Red Cross had sought permission from the Department of National Defence in Ottawa to accept the offer and was prepared to raise $150,000 to equip "Cliven" as a 300-bed hospital.)

Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, in organizing the advisory co-ordinating committee on comfort and welfare, brought Mr. Bennett and Hon. C. A. Dunning, former Canadian Finance Minister, out of retirement.

Irish Labor Party Promises Support

BELFAST, Sept. 28 (CP).—A delegation from the Northern Ireland Labor Party today assured Viscount Craigavon, the Prime Minister, of their fullest co-operation with the Government in its effort to assist Great Britain in the prosecution of the war.

The delegation urged there should be no abrogation of the usual parliamentary sittings. The Premier advised them that the sessions would be continued in the normal manner.

MINISTRY IS UNDER FIRE

British Information Branch May Be Reorganized—Will Avoid Inflation

LONDON, Sept. 28 (AP).—The Press Association said tonight that "drastic reorganization" of the much-criticized Ministry of Information may be considered by the Cabinet at its next meeting.

Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the House of Commons today that an investigation of the ministry is under way to determine if its organization is efficient and not overstaffed.

The House will discuss work of the ministry next Tuesday.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer assured the nation the Government would avoid inflation and would see that every penny is used wisely in spending the heaviest taxes Britons have ever been called upon to pay.

BANK RATE REDUCED

"We have been pretty active these three weeks," Sir John told the House in outlining financial control measures, which, he said, had made possible a reduction in the bank rate from 4 to 3 per cent and cheap Government borrowing.

The Government's borrowing plans will not be announced, he asserted, until the budget is passed.

"Our object is to borrow from the genuine savings of the people at the lowest rate we can," he added.

COUNTERACTS INFLATION

The heavy taxation, he said, would counteract inflationary tendencies and prevent a depreciation of the pound.

Sir John said "it is no accident" that the day after the budget was proposed it was "possible to reduce the bank rate."

"We have within the last week or two got into working order the complete control of capital issues, the complete control of foreign exchange and the control of exports."

SHIP HALTED THREE TIMES IN ONE NIGHT
FREDERIKSHAVN, Denmark, Sept. 28 (AP).—The captain of a Finnish ship reported here today he was stopped three times during the night by warships whose nationality he said he was forbidden to disclose.

The first ship hailed him, he said; the second fired a blank shot, and the third a live shell. He said his ship's papers were examined in each case.

New U.S. Neutrality Legislation Is Ready For Debate in Senate

Amendments Passed by Committee Tighten Restrictions on Credits to Belligerent Nations—Little Said About Embargo Repeal

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP).—The Administration's neutrality legislation passed the United States Senate foreign relations committee today and reached the long-awaited stage at which it was ready for a momentous debate in the Senate itself.

In a three-hour session the committee decided, 16-7, to report the measure to the Senate. This action was taken by the 12-11 vote by which the group pigeon-holed similar legislation in July over the protest of President Roosevelt and State Secretary Hull.

The committee approved amendments to strengthen the bill's restrictions on credits to belligerent nations and to ease its effect upon airplane and steamship lines plying between United States and South and Central America.

There was no extended fight in the committee on the most controversial issue involved in the bill—repeal of the embargo on shipment of arms to belligerents. Opponents of repeal said they preferred to make their case in the Senate.

SHIPPING PROVISIONS
The bill would make it unlawful for any United States vessel to carry any passengers or any articles or materials to any nation at war, except over lakes, rivers and inland waters bordering on United States. Inland transportation to countries bordering United States also would be permitted, but all inland shipping would be subject to such restrictions as the President might prescribe.

This would mean, in effect, that some trade—depending on what restrictions were fixed—could be carried on with Canada by American delivery, but that United Kingdom, French and German purchases of American goods would have to take their goods across the Atlantic in their own ships or those of neutrals other than United States.

Off to Confer at Moscow

Raids of French Plane Squadrons Penetrate Deep

General Staff Reports Successful Land Attack Near Moselle Sector—French Aircraft Have Better of Engagements With Nazi Flyers—Soldiers Use Pigs to Explode Mines

PARIS, Sept. 28 (AP).—The French General Staff tonight reported a successful attack near the Moselle sector against German forces as well as a series of raids by squadrons of French planes deep into German territory.

A General Staff communiqué said an undisclosed number of prisoners were taken in the attack which inched into the German-held area along the eastern bank of the Moselle River, near the French and Luxembourg borders at the extreme northern end of the Western Front.

RIGHT TO FOUR
In two days the French were reported in dispatches reaching Paris to have shot down eight German Messerschmidt fighters against the loss of four of their own.

In a dogfight last Monday, these forces said, three French planes met five Messerschmidts over the German lines and shot down three of the new enemy craft. One French plane was damaged.

The Press Association said the raiders were beaten back each time without damaging any ship of the navy.

The association said "a squadron of German bombers tried to reach the Scottish coast yesterday, but the attempt was defeated."

British fighting planes took off from a number of airfields over the North Sea and succeeded in driving them off, none getting through the defence.

SEEN OVER HOLLAND
AMSTERDAM, Sept. 28 (AP).—A Netherlands radio announcement tonight said large numbers of foreign planes headed westward were sighted over many parts of Holland tonight.

The announcement said one group of the planes was seen over the village of Harderwijk shortly before midnight. They were not sighted over Amsterdam.

The radio has been used frequently to advise anti-aircraft guns of the Netherlands' army to be on the alert.

WILL JOIN IN PEACE EFFORT

Germany and Soviet Russia Agree to Co-operate in Attempt

BERLIN, Sept. 28 (AP).—Germany and Soviet Russia have agreed to co-operate in an attempt to bring peace with Germany, the German News Agency reported tonight in a dispatch from Moscow.

The report was coupled with an announcement by the agency that Germany and Russia had "definitely solved questions resulting from the disintegration of the Polish State."

PART OF AGREEMENT
As part of the agreement between Germany and Soviet Russia, the agency reported.

"They unanimously voice their opinion that it would be in the interest of all nations to bring to an end the state of war at present existing between Germany on one side and England and France on the other."

Both Governments, therefore, will concentrate their efforts, if necessary in co-operation with other friendly powers toward reaching this goal.

"Should, however, the efforts of both Governments remain unsuccessful, the fact would thereby be established that England and France would be responsible for continuation of the war, in which case the Government of Germany and the U.S.S.R. will consult each other as to necessary measures."

China's Candidate Selected as Next Pontiff of Tibet

HUNGKING, Sept. 28 (AP).—Chinese press dispatches today reported that China's candidate—a five-year-old boy—had been accepted in a secret council at Lhasa as the next Dalai Lama, political Pontiff of Tibet. With a caravan of armed guards, this lad ended yesterday a 1,000-mile journey to Tibet. Regent Je Chen welcomed the boy ceremoniously, and Chinese dispatches indicated he had been designated the Dalai Lama's "reincarnation."

CONVOYS ARE MAKING PORT WITH SAFETY
TORONTO, Sept. 29 (CP).—The Globe and Mail today in a special dispatch from Montreal says convoys of vessels loaded with wheat, metals, manufactured goods and other products are leaving the Atlantic Coast at regular intervals and every ship is arriving safely in British ports.

The first successful convoy consisted of fifteen freighters, loaded in all with half a million bushels of grain. There have been others since, and, according to the best of information, not one has been menaced by German submarines.

NEW MUTUAL ASSISTANCE AND TRADE AGREEMENT GIVES THE SOVIET GREATLY-INCREASED MILITARY AND ECONOMIC INFLUENCE OVER NORTH BALTIC—SOVEREIGN RIGHTS OF PARTIES NOT AFFECTED

DIPLOMATIC MANOEUVRING IS CONTINUING IN MOSCOW
MOSCOW, Sept. 29 (AP).—Soviet Russia today announced conclusion of a mutual assistance and trade agreement with her little Baltic neighbor, Estonia. Tass, official Soviet news agency, said the pact was signed Thursday, after four days of negotiations beginning Sunday.

By the pact Estonia gave the Soviet the right to maintain naval bases and several airdromes, leased "at a reasonable price," on the Estonia islands of Saaremaa (Oesel) and Hiiuma (Dagoe) and in the port of Paldiski (Baltiskii).

The pact bound each country to render "every assistance," including military, in the event of "direct aggression or menace of aggression" arising on the part of any European power against the land frontiers of either from across the frontiers of Latvia, or against the sea frontiers of either in the Baltic Sea.

The naval guarantee included the new bases acquired by the Soviet under her pact with Estonia.

SOVIET ARMS FOR ESTONIA
The Soviet also agreed to render assistance in providing the Estonian army with armaments and equipment.

The pact provided that the exact sites of the new Soviet bases and the forces to be maintained there would be defined and exactly limited by future agreement.

The pact was made for a term of ten years, with a possible continuation for five years more if not denounced by either party one year before expiration of its original term.

A reservation said "this pact should not affect in any extent the sovereign rights of the contracting parties, in particular their economic systems and state organization."

The Soviet Government announced simultaneously a trade agreement between Russia and Estonia providing for trade relations between the two nations four and one-half times as great as at present, and giving Russia greatly enlarged transit privileges for her goods to Estonian ports.

FIRM HOLD OVER NORTH BALTIC
The two agreements give Russia a firm military and economic hold over the North Baltic, particularly increasing her influence over the Gulf of Riga, where Latvia's port is situated, the Gulf of Finland, in which Finland is interested, and the Gulf of Bothnia, vital to the commerce of Sweden and Finland.

The trade agreement gives Estonia the right to transport goods over Soviet railways and waterways to Arctic and Black Sea ports, and fixes the amount of trade turnover between the two countries at 39,000,000 Estonian kronas (about $8,580,000).

With the foreign ministers of three governments, Germany, Estonia and Turkey, in Moscow, the Soviet capital was the centre of diplomatic activity which foreign observers predicted might produce another quick shift in Europe's balance of power.

SWEDISH SHIP IS TORPEDOED OFF NORWAY
STAVANGER, Norway, Sept. 28 (AP).—The crew of the 3,778-ton Swedish freighter Nyland, picked up from lifeboats off the Norwegian coast, asserted their ship had been halted by a submarine early today and torpedoed seven hours later.

The entire crew of twenty-nine was saved by Norwegian torpedo boats.

The Nyland, with a cargo of iron ore for Antwerp, had tied up here for a week, but put out late last night.

Members of her crew said she was halted at 1:15 a.m., but was not sunk until 8:15.

BRITISH SEAPLANE ESCAPES ICELAND
LONDON, Sept. 28 (CP).—The Ministry of Information announced tonight the return to England of a Royal Air Force flying boat which was forced down in Icelandic waters on Tuesday.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 28 (AP).—A British warplane with its crew of nine which made a forced landing at Rausarhoefn in Northern Iceland escaped today, the newspaper Berlingske Aftensavis said in a dispatch from Reykjavik, Iceland.

A Danish radio report said the British plane had been serviced in preparation for a flight, under the escort of an Iceland plane, from Rausarhoefn to Reykjavik.

When the Iceland plane, sent out from Reykjavik, landed at Rausarhoefn it found the Britons had taken off, presumably for England.

DEFENCE MINISTER SAYS REPRESENTATION IN FIRST EXPEDITIONARY DIVISION TO BE ON BASIS OF POPULATION AS FAR AS POSSIBLE
OTTAWA, Sept. 28 (AP).—All parts of Canada will be represented in the first overseas division of the Canadian active service force now being organized, Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Defence, announced tonight. So far as possible representation will be on the basis of population.

The active service force, Mr. Rogers said, includes a reserve force of two divisions with a quota of auxiliary troops. From this one division will be sent overseas when required and a second division will be kept under arms as a further measure of preparedness.

Prisoners Captured Off German U-Boats In Internment Camp

Group Arrives at Quarters in North of England Cotton Mill—Play Football on Roof—Surprised at Kind Treatment

LONDON, Sept. 28 (P)—A group of Germans, described as "U-boat prisoners," arrived at an internment camp in a northern industrial area today, the Ministry of Information announced.

"Most of them were civilian dress, although a few had retained their naval trousers and boots," the ministry announcement said. "They looked fit but a trifle haggard. The average age was about twenty-three and they carried oddments of personal belongings in cardboard boxes. When questioned by officers they stood smartly to attention."

(Prime Minister Chamberlain on September 15 told the House of Commons prisoners had been taken in British successes against German submarines. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, on Tuesday said additional German submarine men had been captured.)

IN COTTON MILL
German prisoners are being interned in a "gaunt, five-storied cotton mill of 1,000 windows overlooking a crowded valley in the heart of the Northern industrial area," the ministry announcement said.

German prisoners now are playing football on the mill roof, the ministry added.
Veteran military guards with fixed bayonets patrol barbed-wire entanglements encircling the camp, the ministry said. "On flanking ground 300 yards behind the mill, a crowd of civilians, mainly women and children, watch the prisoners at play, work and exercise."

IN CIVILIAN DRESS
"They are dressed in ordinary civilian sports jackets, sports and grey flannel trousers and many of them wear white tennis shoes. Some are engaged in constructing an air raid shelter."

"The only distinguishing mark on the prisoners' clothing is a wide circular panel of colored cloth on a trouser leg and at the back of the coat."

The communiqué quoted a guard as saying "they work well and seem to be a decent sort."

Today's arrivals came by train to a siding near the mill and were marched smartly to a receiving room under close guard.

The ministry quoted a guard, himself a prisoner in Germany in 1918, as saying the first arrivals gave the Nazi salute. "But we cut that out," he said.

SURPRISED AT TREATMENT
The communiqué said prisoners were surprised that they were well treated, "having been told in Germany to expect something more severe."

The announcement continued: "German books have been allowed them. Several acres of land adjacent to the mill have been acquired for recreational purposes. "Escape is practically impossible, as there are guards on every floor and a double sentry faces the walls."

SAFE AND SOUND

An Admiralty spokesman said the German report of a successful attack on a British cruiser was "all poppycock." In answer to broadcast German hints that the 30,000-ton aircraft carrier Ark Royal had been hit on Tuesday, the Press Association said the vessel "is safe and sound at her allotted station."

A formal statement issued later by the Admiralty said:

"In view of the continued and reiterated mistatement of a German broadcast to the effect that units of the British Fleet in the North Sea have been damaged by German aircraft, the Admiralty reaffirms that in the actions referred to no British ship has been damaged nor any casualties incurred from German aircraft."

"The German report of a bomb hitting a British heavy cruiser off May Island seems to refer to the fact that German aircraft attempted to bomb a destroyer in that area at 11:30 a.m., September 27, but failed to obtain a hit or to do any damage. "No British cruiser was attacked in that locality."

Announcement of the explosion in a munition-factory gave no location of the plant except the fact that it was in the North.

DRIVEN FROM COAST
An authoritative statement declared "German submarines have now been driven from the thickly dotted shipping routes" around the British coast.

"In less than a month," it said, "they have found the pace too hot for them... and they are now forced to operate much further out in the open sea, where the catch is bound to be a much smaller one."

Account of the Royal Air Force activities published today estimated the Germans were "flying on the average three machines a day on the Western Front."

Officials were confident that Turkey—key to the whole Balkan line-up—would remain firm in its friendship with Great Britain, a friendship dating back to the early days of the late Kemal Ataturk, founder of post-war Turkey.

TOPICS UNKNOWN

Official sources could throw no light on the conference. Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop of Germany is holding in Moscow. They simply did not know what-topics are being discussed with Joseph Stalin and Premier Vyacheslav Molotov in the Kremlin.

But they seemed extremely confident of Turkey's continued friendship with Great Britain and believed that, if Turkey stood aloof from such a plan, Von Ribbentrop would have a tough time in persuading Stalin to join any scheme to reshuffle the Balkan frontiers.

Malaise, according to usually reliable sources, was reported assuring Great Britain that Soviet policy is governed by its non-aggression pact with Germany. Apart from that, he was reported as being vague and indefinite in his terms in discussing trade negotiations.

tion of the force to be carried out smoothly and without confusion. The primary motive underlying mobilization of two divisions and ancillary troops was to create a force immediately available for action anywhere in Canada on a plan which would provide a force for overseas if desirable. The decision had now been made to send a division overseas and the units to comprise it would be announced later.

RAISING THE WIND
The champion optimist was just dashing off on his holiday, carrying a large suitcase. Unfortunately for him, he met his landlord at the entrance to the station.

"Off on holiday, are you?" the landlord snapped. "Well, you've got a nerve to go when you owe me three months' rent."

"You know I can't pay you," said the other. "Why, I couldn't have got this trip if I hadn't sold that new bath you put in last week!"

DAY OF PRAYER SET IN CANADA

October 8 to Be Set Apart In Dominion for Intercession to God

OTTAWA, Sept. 28 (CP)—The Prime Minister's office announced today that a proclamation is to be issued setting apart Sunday, October 8, to be observed throughout the Dominion "as a day of humble prayer and intercession to God."

The proclamation sets forth that Canada has been forced "to take up arms in defence of rights and liberties unjustly attacked and to prevent unprovoked aggression."

"We, therefore, believe it to be fitting that our people of Canada should be enabled to make a public and solemn avowal of duty to Almighty God and need of guidance," have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Privy Council for Canada, to appoint, and we do hereby appoint, Sunday, the eighth day of October next, to be throughout our Dominion of Canada a day of humble prayer and intercession to Almighty God on behalf of the cause undertaken by the United Kingdom and other Dominions of the British Commonwealth of Nations, and by allied and associated powers, and all those who are offering their lives for our cause, and for a speedy and favorable peace that shall be founded on understanding and not hatred, to the end that peace shall endure."

"And we do hereby invite all our loving subjects throughout Canada to set apart this appointed day as a day of humble prayer and intercession."

"Of all which our loving subjects and all others whom these presents may concern are hereby required to take notice and to govern themselves accordingly."

AIRPLANE RAIDS PENETRATE DEEP

plane was said to have been downed along with one of the observation planes they were escorting.

But before these same reports said, five French planes met nine German craft a considerable distance within German territory.

The French communiqué, announcing that the Polish attack was carried out "favorably" in the Moselle sector, apparently meant they had passed the German frontier post of Perl, which they have been holding for more than one week.

From there it was believed by observers they advanced along the tracks of the main line railroad paralleling the Moselle River to Besch. Besch is three miles beyond Perl, and just across the Moselle from Luxembourg.

PIGS CLEAR WAY
A dispatch in the newspaper Paris Soir said French soldiers rounded up pigs from neighboring farms and drove them ahead. The snorting through the underbrush and forest-covered slopes, exploded German land mines and cleared the way for the troops.

What was left of the pigs was passed back to the company chef. Advice from the front said a German patrol, numbering about fifty men, last night attempted to capture a small hilltop from which the French were reported to command the western quarter of Saarbrücken. Saar Valley industrial city in the centre of the front.

The French said the Germans, attacking through a wood which borders the German village of Gerweiler, were "nailed down" by short-range fire from 75-millimetre (3-inch) guns and machine-guns. They said the attackers were forced to crawl back to their block-houses, leaving many wounded.

LITTLE OPPOSITION
French military sources said their planes seemed to be carrying out their night raids over Germany with little opposition.

This was partly due, they asserted, to German air losses in fighting against Poland and also to the necessity of overhauling those planes in the air for long periods during the three-week Polish conquest.

These sources said the French were taking advantage of this situation by sending combined French and British squadrons into

Survivor Narrates Dramatic Story of Sinking of Athenia

Mrs. Kate Williams Is First of Eight Victorians Rescued to Arrive Home—Still Suffering From Harrowing Experience

LOOKING pale and still suffering acutely from bruises and shock, Mrs. Kate Williams, sixty-four, of 3739 Savannah Avenue, told a dramatic story yesterday of the torpedoing of the Athenia and subsequent rescue of the liner's passengers.

Mrs. Williams arrived in Victoria from Vancouver on Wednesday afternoon, and was the first of eight local residents, who were on board the ill-fated vessel, to be reunited with relatives here. She was met in Vancouver by her daughter, Mrs. O. V. Dawkins, who brought her home.

"It was a dreadful experience," Mrs. Williams told a Colonist reporter as she reclined in a comfortable chair in her daughter's home. "I don't like to look back to it and I never want to go through anything like it again. From now on I'm going to do my traveling by land. After this I'll be content to stay on Vancouver Island."

RECALLS DETAILS
Mrs. Williams was able to recall most of the details of her adventure. She did not like to talk about it, but said she would tell it once and then try to forget it.

"We sailed from Liverpool on Saturday, September 2," Mrs. Williams said. "We had a complete ship blackout Saturday night, because there was danger from submarines. But everything went well until Sunday evening when we were at dinner. That was when the U-boat struck."

"We were seated in the dining-room at 7 o'clock. At 7:15 there was a terrific explosion that shook the whole ship. Dishes were thrown in our faces, and tables overturned. Then the lights went out. We did not know what had happened. The dining-room became a scene of almost indescribable confusion. Women screamed and men shouted. Everyone rushed for the doorways. It was the first time I had ever seen a panic."

GIVEN LIFE BELT
"I knew from the commotion that something terrible had happened, and thought we would have to abandon ship. But I had left my lifebelt in my cabin, two decks up, thinking everything would be all right. I didn't know what to do. I groped my way up the stairs, calling out my room number, since I could not see my way to it in the dark."

"Fortunately, my traveling companion, Mrs. Elsie Russell, Seattle, heard me, and came to me. In the hallway, she said she had had to give my lifebelt to someone who wanted it for a child. 'We didn't know where to get another belt. Then a man came down the stairs—"

WOMAN KILLED BY TRAM IN BURNABY

VANCOUVER, Sept. 28 (CP)—An unidentified middle-aged woman was killed in Burnaby Municipality tonight when she was struck by a B.C. Electric Railway interurban.

Burnaby Columbia Police said the woman had alighted from a New Westminster-bound train when she was apparently struck by another interurban moving in the opposite direction.

Chief of Police Warns Public On Sale of Tickets

THE following warning in connection with the purchase of tickets was issued yesterday by Chief J. A. The public is warned to have nothing to do with such individuals."

NOT TOO BAD
A boy went into a big drug store in America and asked: "Could you fix a dose of castor oil so the oil won't taste?"

"Certainly. Won't you have a glass of ice-cream soda while you're waiting?" courteously replied the servant.

Jackie drank the soda with relish. "Anything else?" asked the chemist. "No, nothing but the oil," the boy replied.

"But you drank it," was the smiling answer. "Gee whizz!" exclaimed Jackie, "I wanted that for dad!"

We were taken to Glasgow, where we stayed ten days at the expense of the city, and then driven at night to Liverpool, where we were given free passage to Quebec on the Duchess of Athol. We crossed the Atlantic far north of the regular route, and landed safely in Canada. Then the Red Cross took us in hand, and my passage home was arranged for.

"Everyone treated us perfectly," Mrs. Williams concluded. "We couldn't have had better care. I want to thank everybody who helped us, and our friends here who sent messages and flowers. I'm awfully grateful to be back safe. I don't think I'll ever want to travel anywhere again."

FIRED AT SUBMARINE
"There was still more excitement on board the Escort, for she fired several broadsides at a submarine she sighted. Then 'All Clear' was sounded, and we began to steam for Greenock, Scotland. We landed there Monday morning.

NOT TOO BAD
A boy went into a big drug store in America and asked: "Could you fix a dose of castor oil so the oil won't taste?"

"Certainly. Won't you have a glass of ice-cream soda while you're waiting?" courteously replied the servant.

Jackie drank the soda with relish. "Anything else?" asked the chemist. "No, nothing but the oil," the boy replied.

"But you drank it," was the smiling answer. "Gee whizz!" exclaimed Jackie, "I wanted that for dad!"

TRAIL OF BROKEN PLEDGES

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, in a broadcast in German to the German people, has made it clear to them why Great Britain is at war. "We are concerned," he said, "because we gave our word of honor to defend Poland against aggression. Why did we feel it necessary to pledge ourselves to defend this Eastern Power when our interests lie in the West, and when your Leader has said he has no interest in the West? The answer is—and I regret to have to say it—that nobody in this country any longer places any trust in your Leader's word." Mr. Chamberlain went on to explain why there could be no trust in Herr Hitler's word.

"He gave his word that he would respect the Locarno Treaty," he broke it. He gave his word that he would not intend to annex Austria. He broke it. He declared that he would not incorporate the Czechs in the Reich; he did so. He gave his word after Munich that he had no further territorial demands in Europe; he broke it. He gave his word that he wanted no Polish provinces; he broke it. He has sworn to you for years that he was the mortal enemy of Bolshevism; he is now its ally. Can you wonder his word is, for us, not worth the paper it is written on? ... In this war we are not fighting against you, the German people, for whom we have no bitter feeling, but against a tyrannical and forsworn regime which has betrayed not only its own people but the whole of Western civilization and all that you and we hold dear."

UNRESTRICTED SUBMARINE WARFARE

The whole record of Hitlerism has been a succession of broken promises. Since the present war opened, the theory on which Power Politics is founded has been given expression in the doctrine of conducting hostilities as if all treaty obligations were scraps of paper. Within twenty-four hours of the outbreak of hostilities the Athenian was sunk without warning, yet Germany was one of the first of the Powers who in 1936 agreed to the principle and precept of international law, that the "real safety of passengers and crew of a merchant ship must be assured, even if the ship herself may legally be sunk."

The Athenian was sunk 200 miles from land. It had been supposed, because of international agreement reached since the Great War, that, as Mr. Winston Churchill has put it, "except in cases of refusal to stop or of active resistance to visit and search, a submarine must not sink or render incapable of navigation a merchant ship without having placed passengers and crew and ship's papers in a place of safety." Ships' lifeboats are not regarded as a place of safety, unless sea and weather conditions are favorable, or there is proximity of land or the presence of another ship to take crew and passengers aboard. The Athenian was torpedoed without warning, giving notice to the world that Germany, where the phrase "unrestricted submarine warfare" was coined, intends to pursue the course of ruthless and callous sinking of merchant ships—and the last few weeks have proved that the ships may be of neutral as well as belligerent nationality.

THE SOCIALIST MENTALITY

A survey of the Socialist mentality reveals, among other features, a few hallucinations and assumptions, a fantastic and fallacious theory of morals and moral development, and (secretly hidden behind a confident exterior) some uneasy doubts and mental reservations.

Socialist orators, for example, usually think of individuals as either invincibly ignorant or else morally decadent. Many Socialists claim that they are more fully alive to the defects of our social system than their opponents. The truth is, of course, that ordinary people are just as well aware of these defects and just as anxious and willing to remedy them as the noisy agitators themselves. Nevertheless, the hallucination persists in the radical mind, and the Socialist rank and file are carefully indoctrinated with the notion that the intellectual powers and capacities of Socialists surpass those of other men, and that they live on a higher moral plane than their neighbors. When the arguments of Socialist writers and orators are examined, it will be found that these assumptions lie at the back of all their reasonings. It is almost impossible to induce a Socialist to believe that mere individuals are really desirous of improving the economic condition of the people. In the Socialist point of view the only way of proving that you truly desire to bring about a better state of things is to adopt the socialist programme and no other.

It is worth while to glance for a moment at the Socialist theory of moral development. Their theory is that, by means of a cleverly constructed system of state rules and regulations, individual men and women can be trained and developed. Moral excellence in this view consists in the subordination of the will of the citizen to the larger will of the state, and his moral improvement is to be measured by the extent of his submissiveness to the arbitrary will of the rulers of the state.

The shores of time are strewn with the wrecks of nations that have tried this theory. Outward conformity with externally imposed rules has never proved successful in promoting the moral well-being of the individual. The non-Socialist view of the matter is that moral development is a process which takes place not in the state as a whole but in the heart and mind of each individual. There "an mass production of material things, but not of moral character."

Another feature of the Socialist mentality, adverted to above, deserves attention. It is little spoken of by Socialists themselves. It is, in fact, usually kept concealed in a secret corner of the Socialist's private thoughts and aspirations. Socialist theory has much to say of a "planned economy," under which the workers shall enjoy economic equality, but Socialists when they speak of equality do so with a mental reservation in their own favor. Every Socialist has secretly resolved in his heart of hearts that when the new socialist order is established, a place must be found for him, not among the workers who are to enjoy economic equality, but among the economy planners who are to sit in the seats of the mighty and direct the movements of the workers. In public the socialist spellbinder may pay glowing tributes to the socialist doctrine of economic equality and profess his fervent loyalty to the sacred principle of the classless society. In private, however, and in his calmer moments, he will, if questioned closely upon the subject, admit that he has no desire to serve in the ranks in the new proletarian regime. He expects to have a job as one of the officials.

GERMAN WAR ECONOMY

One of the members of the British Detachment of the Military "Control" Commission for the disarmament of Germany after the Great War has been discussing that country's economy in the present struggle. He recalls that German authorities, in supplying figures to the British Detachment in 1919, said workers employed in munition factories at the time of the Armistice numbered 2,291,000. The number of skilled workers recalled from the front in execution of the Hindenburg programme was increased from 600,000 to 2,100,000, and the number of women voluntarily employed reached 4,000,000. He believes that today the number of people thus employed "vastly exceeds these figures, for the Hitler regime has assumed all the powers which were denied to the German Government and the High Command in the last war."

He points out that the mobilization of labor in Germany, only achieved by the middle of the last war, and then only partially, is already a fact and has been in force for two years, and women and boys have been brought within "its inexorable decrees." He says: "The only source available to expand the supply will be the enslavement of the civil population of any enemy territories overrun and occupied by German troops during the initial stages of the war." Germany has entered on the present war with all her resources, industrial and economic, mobilized. The conclusion to be reached from this is that she is infinitely better prepared for a short war than in 1914, but not so well prepared for a long one.

"MASS HEROISM"

Russia, officially, is praising the "mass heroism" of the Red Army in its fighting with the Poles. Inasmuch as those Poles who were encountered by the Soviet troops must have been outnumbered twenty to one, the praise appears somewhat exaggerated. Russia entered Poland when that State had been almost entirely subdued by Germany. Russia, however, like Germany, engages in bombastic propaganda to keep up the spirits of its people and to justify the course of aggression. That Russia's purpose in invading Poland was aggression is proved to the full by the fact that it is now officially admitted by Moscow that fighting has taken place between the Red Army and Polish troops. A previous report from Moscow said the invading Army was greeted with enthusiastic acclaim. In any case, it marched to the line set as an objective almost without opposition, and for doing so the Red Army is praised for its "mass heroism."

General Goering has been referring to the operations of the British Navy, and says: "Thank God the greater part of the German fleet is in German harbors." The British Admiralty could not have paid a finer tribute to the Royal Navy.

On the whole it is good, it is absolutely needful, for one to be humbled and prostrated, and thrown among the pigs from time to time. Life is a school; we are perverse scholars to the last, and require the rod.

As in a man's life, so in his studies: I think it the most beautiful and humane thing in the world to sink into melancholy, nor the other rise up into extravagance.—Pliny.

The most manifest sign of wisdom is continual cheerfulness; such a state and condition, like things in the region above the moon, is always clear and serene.—Montaigne.

Note and Comment

By SANDHAM GRAVES

For two days now the Pacific Northwest has been making its own weather. Through forest fires and controlled slash-burning it has interposed a thick blanket of smoke between the warm Autumn sun and those who stand much in need of it. There was, of course, a good reason, Vancouver Island and part of the district of Mackenzie contributed to the smoke blanket intentionally. Under Government orders, the logging industry commenced the burning of slash, carrying out one of the main planks in British Columbia's campaign for natural regeneration of its forests.

In earlier times, when slash was left to lie on the ground for some time as much as three years, its subsequent burning destroyed successive years' seedlings. Also, the presence of fallen logs, debris and bark on the ground afforded only a constant fire hazard, requiring one spark to set it ablaze. To burn in the fall the slash from logging carried out in the Spring, and to remove the fire hazard, without loss to seedling, coupled, as this is, with the modern practice of leaving clumps of mature seed trees, slash burning can become a definite factor for forest regeneration. Such, at least, is the hope of the British Columbia Forest Service, as explained to the Legislature on more than one occasion.

Probably there always will be a divergence between what is perfect silviculture would dictate, and what is actually possible under all the many and complex circumstances of timber utilization in a modern world market. Foresters, on the other hand, are quick to state that the leaving of seed trees and slash removal will both add enormously in the perpetuation of British Columbia's softwood stands; by removing the most frequent cause of fires, and increasing the proportion of thrown slash that will have a chance to germinate and so recover the denuded areas.

It was a combination of circumstances that gave British Columbia one of the fastest-growing softwood stands in the world. The relatively mild temperatures in coast areas, combined with prolific rainfall, and several hundred years of undisturbed growth, contributed to the big timber of today. The temperature and rainfall may continue little changed; but the time factor is being overtaken in the natural course of development. The trend, it is contended, will be towards a smaller and faster growing tree; and timber yields, eventually on a sustained-production basis. But, no matter what the trend, the need for improvement in seedling and reduction in fire loss are clear gains all around.

It could probably be sustained upon exact inquiry that more timber has been burned in British Columbia than has ever been cut for use as lumber. Lightning sets fires that no man can prevent. Sparks from settlement mean fires near settlement, mobile or fixed. Greater increases in the use of machinery and power, and the use of every fire and road where man has gone fire has followed him, in those moments when he was most off guard. Successful campaigns against fire have had real and practical results, and now the time has come to fight fire by removing one prolific cause, unburned slash.

Long ago it was thought that British Columbia could turn its timber lands into a great lumbering empire. The time has come. Today that timber is only slightly held, and even then must be advanced with discrimination; because soil surveys have shown fewer agricultural areas than once were believed to exist. If timber growth can be preserved, timber can be a permanent source of wealth. Slash burning, on an ambitious scale, is a start in that direction. So, perhaps the Pacific Northwest is making more than weather this week—it is conserving some of its timber supply. Believing that, one call for the warmth of the sun with better grace.

Provision for payment of interest on bonds not payable exclusively in Canada is being covered by a blanket application to the Foreign Exchange Control Board for permission to purchase foreign exchange, according to D. A. Macdonald, city controller and treasurer.

Glancing Over Sport

Here's a suggestion to local golf officials which is a good idea. Why bring Marvin "Blue" Ward, Spokane, winner of the U.S. national amateur golf crown, and Ken Black, of Vancouver, the ruling Canadian monarch, over here for a charity golf match? They play in Vancouver on October 18 and the proceeds are going to the Red Cross Society, so what's to stop Victoria having them here for an exhibition match at the Bay Links the following day and give the proceeds to the same worthy cause? Charge fifty cents per head and I guarantee more than 1,000 spectators will follow the two ranking amateurs around the course. It is too bad that the opening of the Canadian football season here on Saturday and the start of the Inter-City soccer schedule will clash. Although it's too late now to do anything about stanching the golf match, the two circuits should have gotten together some time back and agreed on different opening dates. The grid sport is on the comeback trail in this city after an absence of several years and the more should have been given the preference over soccer. ... Tools Mertsky, who captained the Windsor basketball team here, against the Dominions in the Canadian final, is now at Port Alberni. He is to coach and also play for the Up-Jumpers this coming season. Tools was headed for Windsor when he left the city but didn't get very far.—J.D.

Camouflage

One of the newly recruited privates at a nearby militia post decided that he would celebrate his first leave in the grand manner. He had planned a visit to a lady friend's house during his day off, but was concerned that this visit should make a rather stronger impression than many others in the past had done. Accordingly, he doffed his private's uniform and set about searching for a more colorful garb. Success met his efforts and it was not long before he had borrowed and altered himself in a corporal's slacks, an imperial tunic, the quartermaster's belt and a trumpet's boots. To complete the effect, he persuaded a number of his senior buddies to lend him their decorations, and he covered both sleeves of his tunic with a varied assortment of crosses, flags, bits of gold, bird, good conduct badges and service medals. So attired, he set out for the home of the young lady, and the scheme worked. As he walked up the garden path the fair one saw him. For a moment she stood hesitant and excited, then ran to meet him with the words, "John, you're wonderful. When did you promote you?" Further details we need not relate. Suffice it to say that John's comrades felt they were amply repaid for the loan of their booty when they were invited to a sumptuous marriage feast later.—E.B.

A Plucky Fern!

Unnoticed by hundreds of persons who daily pass by The Colonist office or stop to read the latest bulletins in the windows, an unnoticed maidenhair fern, vainly tries to raise its leaves above the level of the sidewalk as it struggles for existence beneath an iron grating. How the fern came to be growing in such a place is a mystery, but it has been there for years, and that has fallen down the grating. It may never rise above the surface of its prison, however, for passersby quickly tread it under their feet, and seek to catch sight of the fern. Perhaps some plant lover might raise the grating long enough to remove the fern and reward its courageous growth with a spot in real soil at home.—W.F.

Pavement Punished

At the time of writing, men with compressed air tools were busy tearing up part of View Street to lay a cable. Someone must have been asleep at the switch, for the right time to lay the cable would have been several months ago when the street was being repaved. But then a newly-laid pavement is always fair game for digging. It never fails. A duly sergeant on duty in Chinatown sent in a rush call for the police patrol. Visions of a fight flitted through the minds of two bluecoats as they roared down Fisgard Street. One even went so far as to roll up the sleeve of his tunic. The other felt his pocket clasp encouragingly upon arrival at the source of the call, they found two automobiles with locked bumpers needing attention.

An old joke was revived Tuesday evening as Aubrey sat down at the "Mud Hook" for dinner. Little "Apple Blossom," the waitress, remarked that it looked like rain. "But it smells a little like soup," Aubrey replied. "Nobody can fool himself all the time," person has to sleep sometimes. Bill the Broad Street barber, was heard to remark.—G.B.

A BENEFIT CONCERT

Sir,—Before leaving Victoria last week, together with other members of a small committee, I helped arrange for a benefit concert to be given at the Empire Theatre on Friday, September 29. The members of the committee assumed the payment of all the expenses (kept to a very small amount) so that all money from the sale of tickets will be turned in to the Patsy Swift fund, being looked after by the Royal Trust through the kindness of Mr. F. E. Winslow. It is my sincere wish that from donations to the fund, and from the sale of tickets, this young Victoria girl will receive sufficient money to enable her to take advantage of the three years' scholarship presented to her.

Whether Patricia Swift will develop into a great singer remains to be seen. But a three years' stay in a school where she will receive training in dramatics, languages and music will provide her with the means by which she can always make a living. And, in addition, Miss Swift will have many advantages in hearing many fine artists.

FOR THE NAVY

Sir,—There are plans to do much for our men in the army; good, but let us not forget the boys on our ships. Many of them come from fine Canadian homes, and unlike the soldier, they are unable to get home during a few hours' leave. Could not someone in Victoria open a recreational centre for our sailors? Also some of the literature now being collected for the army could be sent to Equilmart for distributing to the sailors. C. E. BOUGART, 2435 West 2nd, Vancouver, B.C., September 22, 1939.

THE LAW AND THE PROPHETS

Sir,—Not wishing to take too much of your space on this tremendous subject, with your kind permission I should like to clarify a point of view, made in the statement by your correspondent. The letter claims that the Old Testament is out of date and unreliable. Let us endeavor to keep a path clear through this troubled world. To clear up this matter let us consider our Lord's own words. He tells us that He did not come to destroy the Law (Old Testament, Moses), but to fulfill it, Mat. v, 17, 18. He also tells us that not a jot or tittle will pass from this law till all be fulfilled. The coming of Jesus was to bring about the consummation of the Law and the prophets, to obey one, and the fulfillment of the other. The Law includes the Commandments, statutes and judgments for the construction of human society. The statutes of the Lord are the principles in the affairs of the human race in government, economics and sociology. These cannot be destroyed and replaced by something else.

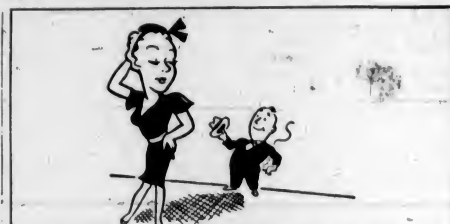

The answer to the question, "Why do so many seek the Kingdom of God on Earth, when comparatively few seek the Kingdom of Heaven?" is because the Kingdom of Heaven is already within us, and the first law of that kingdom is "Love thy neighbor as thyself." Follow that law which the church has been teaching for hundreds of years. Acknowledging it we naturally seek after the kingdom on earth, which must come as sure as the sun rises.

A TRIBUTE

Sir,—It is a foregone conclusion that Premier Pattullo is going to lose his Minister of Public Works. It will be grave loss to the province, for Mr. MacPherson, I without a doubt, the best Minister of Public Works British Columbia has ever had. He has worked wonders with the pitifully small appropriations at his command. He has made every dollar go the limit. Mr. Pattullo will have to search the province to find another minister as able. Roads are so important that a public works minister is one of the most important in the administration of the Government, and his success or failure must affect every citizen. Mr. Pattullo should choose the best man independent of politics; he should keep away from patronage. Mr. Mac-

STATE PLANS ROUNDED OUT

Victoria and Vancouver Reported Organized for Civilian Protection Work

Closely following the London, England, pattern of civil protection precautions, the Provincial Civilian Protection committee announced yesterday through E. W. Griffith, chairman, that Victoria and Vancouver metropolitan areas had been well organized, and satisfactory progress made at these and other points in connection with first aid, fire protection, and emergency control of all essential public services.

At Victoria, it was announced, Captain William Ellis, Beach Drive, had been named by the city as civilian protection officer for the Greater Victoria area. At Vancouver, Dr. Stewart Murray fills the corresponding post for the Greater Vancouver area. Meanwhile, committees and sub-committees within metropolitan limits are placing their recommendations forward to the Provincial group.

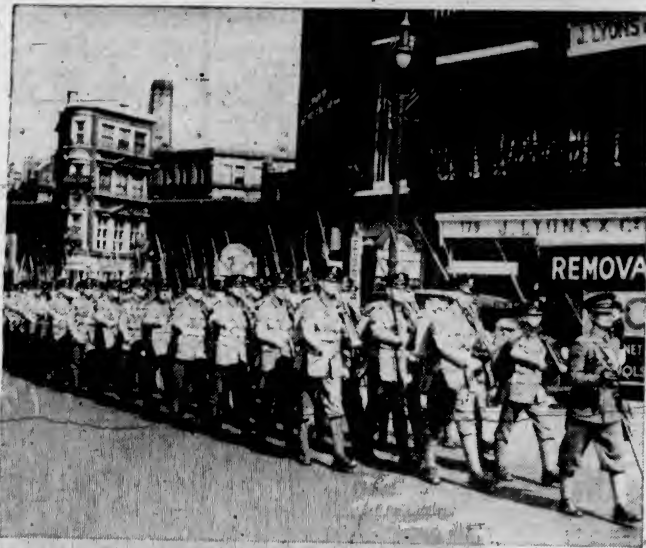

Yesterday Captain Ellis, Dr. Richard Felton and Dr. Murray laid a number of reports before the Provincial committee. These reports, Mr. Griffith said, showed satisfactory progress at all points in the organization of standing civilian protection services.

FIRST AID WORK

In Vancouver seventeen fixed first aid stations and thirteen mobile units have been organized, with some 440 volunteers enrolled. Similar provision is being made for fire and police emergency services, and in connection with health and other matters.

Final reports from the Victoria committee are pending, it was announced, and will show similar provisions all along the line. The plan here, it was said, is to organize a fleet of motor trucks, which would remain on call as emergency ambulances. In the event of the need for their services, fire drills at schools have been intensified.

The Provincial committee pushed inquiries into suitable forms of warning systems, and developed further primary plans to replace any break in communications systems by telephone, short-wave radio, and runners. Using Boy Scouts for the latter purpose, if required, it was stressed again that all services were voluntary, and that municipalities will be expected to assume the cost of their own organizations, apart from Federal supplies.

Brazilian Irritant From Notes En Route to Rio

By Spy

Early, on the seventh day of docking, I noticed a handful of stevedores, chewing Copenhagen snuff vigorously as they gazed up at the "Scylla." Fact that they were inside the picket line seemed hopeful, so I went forward to ask the Captain if these men were possibly about to work.

"Ach, ach, I do not know," the Captain hunched his thick shoulders, "maybe yes, maybe no." Of this damned stupid business I am very tired . . . perhaps, at six o'clock, these evening we sail.

"Perhaps?"

"Thank God!"

"Have you all your papers?" asked the Captain.

"I think so," tentatively checking "You go to Brazil—to Rio—yes?" "I'm trying to. Why?"

"Because you must know that to enter Brazil is very difficult. You must have visa and all demerit of thing. I think you go to Brazilian Consul in San Francisco . . . and hurry you better must, too!"

"Hurry I better must will," I said into his quaint way of backward speaking, and within short seconds was racing for a ferry.

Twenty minutes later, I was running along Market Street, and soon facing something brown and beady-eyed, in the offices of the Brazilian consul, who bowed the information that the Consul was out of town, that the Vice-Consul's whereabouts were very vague, and that he (the beady-eyed person in present charge) had no powers whatsoever, except apparently to bow and attest, "No, senor . . . not even possible," to every question.

"But surely somebody authoritative, must be attainable." I persisted after fifteen minutes warm argument, "perhaps my friend the American Consul will be glad to help."

"You know need?" the dark little man showed sudden interest.

"Intimately."

For a few moments he looked me suspiciously up and down—then a brown hand reached for the desk-telephone, through which he began gabbling in swift Portuguese.

Enfin, he said grudgingly, "Perhaps I have fixed for you, but foremost," he suddenly pinned me with his beady little eyes, "you must have four photographs."

That he was deliberately stretching his official hawser had been obvious from the beginning, but to demand photographs practically at closing time, was just a shade too peccant. "I can't," I snapped to his irritating request.

"Ah, but you must!" His tone rang with relish, "for in all Brazilian ports, they require at least four photographs of all foreigners."

"I'm not a foreigner," I retorted with rich British idiosyncrasy, "and you know you're asking something quite impossible, however, I shall try."

"You are wise, senor." The sarcasm in that was near crazing . . . however, in the hands of consuls one is quite defenseless, and the sole procedure is to keep your hands behind your back, and your lips closed.

So, presently, I began careening all over San Francisco, in search of a photographer who would take, develop and print photographs in half a minute. For a while, this was like chasing the soap around the bath. There were several photographic houses, but all seemed closed. Eventually, I found somebody who guaranteed a complete job and within ten minutes I was in possession of half a dozen portraits that would raise hair on a tomato.

On beholding them, later, the person in the Consul's office coughed delicately before being able to say steadily, "Yes, they will do," and now, I must try and locate the Vice-Consul, again, to see if maybe he can sign.

"What do you mean by 'Maybe he can sign?' Can he, or can't he?"

"Maybe, maybe not. Perhaps I cannot even find him."

"Why on earth didn't you mention that before?" with perspiration gently starting.

"Why should I?" shrugged the clerk. "I am busy—I have no time for explanations . . . but now, once more, I try."

As he began dialing I could have split him with an adze. Presently, he smiled blandly, "Ah, you are in great fortune! The Vice-Consul, he come soon. You are very lucky."

"Very lucky," I confirmed, acidly. "How long will he be?"

"I do not know. You must wait, in patience."

Again, I longed to gravely hurt that man. His delight in this game of "cat and mouse" was as deliberate as it was insufferable—yet it must be suffered—so it behooved me only to abscond to the abysmal degree of "waiting in patience" while the Brazilian began fumbling with green and pink ribbons, and affixing impressive gold seals on my passport. Then, after a lot of thumping with rubber stamps and dies and much fiddling with a paste-pot, he suddenly looked up and said, crisply, "Gracias senor . . . and now four dollars, pls."

"I beg your pardon?" strainedly, "Four dollars?"

"What on earth for?"

"For the visa . . . gracias."

"But I haven't got one." I averred, coldly.

"I know," replied the clerk, "but later you will have one."

"Later's no use," I retorted. "My boat's liable to sail at eight from Oakland, and it's nearly seven now, in San Francisco . . . what the devil do you think I am?"

"Please, senor—this is not the place for discussing what you are. The Vice-Consul will not come, this evening. Tomorrow, he will; and

COMMANDING LARGE CAMP

Calgary-Born Sports Promoter Trains Boys to Be Air Pilots

By GUY RHODES (Canadian Press Staff Writer)

SOMEWHERE ON THE ENGLISH COAST, Sept. 28.—A. C. Critchley, wealthy Calgary-born sports promoter, who now is an air-commodore, is in command of a huge camp of 1,000 youngsters learning to be air pilots, observers and navigators of Great Britain's bombing planes.

The youths, who will be Royal Air Force officers when they complete their training, were seen today being put through their paces by old-time non-commissioned officers. In what used to be a holiday-makers' sun lounge, many more sat at desks learning the first lessons of navigation, working with rulers, dividers and protractors.

In another part of the grounds were reservists undergoing refresher courses.

"FINEST MATERIAL"

Air-Commodore Critchley, who served with the Canadian Corps during the last war before transferring to the Royal Air Force, told newspapermen that "we have the finest material to train that one could possibly find." He added that a minimum of 3,000 pilots could be produced monthly until the end of the war.

The camp contains a large number of Canadian-born youths, New Zealanders and South Africans—the air-commodore said.

"If we opened the floodgates tomorrow, we should have 3,000 wishing to enter, and judging by the last war, they make the finest pilots in the world."

PROMISES TO ENLIVEN PROGRAMMES ON AIR

LONDON, Sept. 28 (C.P.)—Responding to complaints that its wartime programmes were dull, the British Broadcasting Corporation said it would liven up broadcasts next month, restoring a number of pre-war features and introducing a show called "On the Home Front." London's first air raid precautions concert was staged tonight when Beatrice Lillie and other artists put on a show at the Chelsea A.R.P. Depot for civil defence workers.

Social and Personal Will Be Married at St. John's Church

Showers for Miss Benson

In honor of Miss Lorna Benson, whose marriage to Mr. W. Van Druten will take place shortly, several showers have been arranged by her friends. Last evening Mrs. J. G. Jones entertained at a miscellaneous shower at her home, 2587 Dalhousie Street. Autumn colors were carried out in the decorations, an attractive watering-can concealing the gifts. Goldenrod and Autumn leaves were arranged in the rooms and the supper table was centered with a miniature church, with a bride and groom approaching the steps. Mrs. Van Druten and the bride's mother, Mrs. L. Benson, presided at the tea and coffee, and assisting in serving were the hostesses' daughter, Miss Norma Jones, and Miss Joyce Knight. VOYAGER IS
AT MADEIRARev. John Antle Delaying Trip on Advice of British Consul

TORONTO, Sept. 28 (C.P.).—Word has been received here that Captain the Rev. John C. Antle, seventy-three-year-old British Columbia clergyman, who set out from London in a twelve-metre sailing craft on a trans-Atlantic voyage, has reached Madeira, about 500 miles southwest of Lisbon.

The veteran churchman and navigator reported in a letter to Church of England missionary headquarters here that he left England late in August and it was not until he arrived at the Portuguese island, September 7, that he learned of the war. With his crew of one, an English youth he engaged at Plymouth, where he purchased the boat, he called at Lisbon en route to Madeira.

The long journey through dangerous waters was made without incident, but on the advice of the British Consulate at Madeira, Captain Antle is delaying his journey across the South Atlantic and through the Caribbean Sea to the United States.

For many years Captain Antle was superintendent of the Columbia Coast Mission, a missionary enterprise of the Anglican Church among fishermen, lumbermen and other workers on the Pacific Coast. The vessel in which he is making his hazardous trip is equipped with an auxiliary motor and is intended for the mission's work.

"In circumstances demanding that there should be no slowing up or interruption of rail transportation services in Canada, we feel sure that the railway companies will meet with ready response from shippers and receivers of traffic in their efforts to insure continued efficient service," a bulletin issued

Many Perish on Aircraft Carrier

This picture, taken five weeks ago, shows a crowd of sailors and officers on H.M.S. Courageous rushing to the front of the deck to hear the King speak. Today, 518 are missing following the sinking of the aircraft carrier by a German submarine. Reports from the British Admiralty state that the submarine made a daring attack on the big ship through a convoy of British destroyers, which shelled the submarine after the torpedo was fired.

by the association states. The bulletin suggests that member lines instruct their officers and agents to contact railway patrons and make every effort to secure their co-operation to the end that freight car equipment will be utilized to its full capacity when practicable to do so.

In this connection the bulletin points out that shippers are in a position to greatly increase and speed up transportation services if they load cars quickly and to their full weight-carrying or cubical capacity whenever practicable, regardless of tariff minima, and promptly give to the railways detailed shipping instructions. Consignees can assist materially by placing orders with shippers for full carloads, by promptly unloading at destination, and by removal of refuse and dunnage from cars unloaded so as to leave them in condition for prompt reloading.

It is announced that co-operation among the shippers, suggested will be of benefit to shippers, receivers and the railways.

"In circumstances demanding that there should be no slowing up or interruption of rail transportation services in Canada, we feel sure that the railway companies will meet with ready response from shippers and receivers of traffic in their efforts to insure continued efficient service," a bulletin issued

IS EXTENDED INDEFINITELY
Agreement Between Employers and Union Will Keep Coast Ports Open

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 28 (P.).—An agreement extending the present waterfront contract indefinitely, and precluding any possibility of a tie-up of West Coast ports without at least sixty days' notice, was reached here today between waterfront employers and C.I.O. longshoremen.

The current contract was due to expire at midnight, Saturday, September 30.

The Waterfront Employers' Association announced the new pact at noon today.

While negotiations for a new contract continue, with the United States Maritime Board as mediator, working conditions as of September 15 are to prevail, according to the agreement.

Pacific Coast ports, from the Mexican border to Puget Sound, are affected by the arrangement.

Chief Officer of Torpedoed Vessel Hails From Coast

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (P.).—Among twenty-nine survivors of the torpedoed British freighter Watkinson, who arrived here Sunday on the American Farmer, of the United States Line, was Chief Officer John Puncheon, whose mother, Mrs. D. Ferry, and two sisters live in Vancouver (6172 Windsor Street). Mr. Puncheon said today he and the other rescued members of the crew expect to return to England shortly.

The Kalistan was torpedoed about 400 miles off the coast of Eire last week.

PACK IS SHORT 142,004 CASES
Fewer Sockeye, Cohoe and Chum Salmon Caught by Coast Fishermen

VANCOUVER, Sept. 28 (P.).—Decreases in the sockeye, coho and chum salmon catches in British Columbia waters have caused a drop of 142,004 cases in the 1939 salmon pack to date this year, compared with the same period of 1938, according to a bulletin issued by the chief supervisor of fisheries here today.

The bulletin gave this year's total pack at 1,166,957 cases, compared with 1,308,961 cases in 1938.

The big drop in the sockeye, coho and chum pack was partly due to a gain of 168,946 cases in the pink salmon pack, which totaled 571,485 cases.

ELECTED PRESIDENT

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (P.).—Charles E. Denney today was elected president of the Northern Pacific Railway, succeeding the late Charles Donnelly. Denney has been serving as president-trustee of the Erie Railroad. He is fifty-nine years old.

According to Culbertson

Playing duplicate bridge, a declarer ducked the jack. Declared now he is elated when he discovers that he is about to bring home his contract. There may be an extra trick lurking in the bushes which, for match-point purposes, is almost as valuable as the contract itself. In today's game, declarer was so pleased to draw a certain vital jack and fulfill his contract that he played (cautiously) thereafter.

The bidding: South West North East
1 NT Pass 2 Pass
3 NT Pass Pass Pass

South's second bid (one no trump) is worthy of note. Undoubtedly South's four honor tricks made this an unheralded bid, nevertheless, it was the best action available at that point. There are times in the preliminary stages of bidding when it is wise to understate one's values, when the only alternative is to overstate them. In this case South had to choose between a one and a two no trump rebid. The former, as noted, would not express South's four honor tricks, but the latter would be erring even farther in the other direction. The reasoning which dictated South's choice was perfectly sound. If North could not make another big over one no trump there hardly could be a good play for game. A glance at the North hand confirms this reasoning. Surely, with all that North held, it would have been inexcusable for him to pass, and his two diamond bids was the logical second response. Yet, despite all he held, declarer needed a certain amount of luck to bring home his contract.

West, whose only suit length was in the opponent's bid suit, decided to open a low club. Declarer properly put up the ten, hoping the lead was from the Q-J, but East played the queen and declarer won with the ace. A low diamond was led to the queen. East won and returned his original fourth best club. Declarer ducked. West won and returned the jack. Declared now he is elated when he discovers that he is about to bring home his contract. There may be an extra trick lurking in the bushes which, for match-point purposes, is almost as valuable as the contract itself. In today's game, declarer was so pleased to draw a certain vital jack and fulfill his contract that he played (cautiously) thereafter.

IN SOUTH SEAS

In order to make up for marked decreases in its haul of bonito and tuna in the seas adjacent to Japan, the Ocean Fishery Association is planning to extend its operations to the South Seas, and will approach the Agriculture and Forestry Ministry, the Overseas Ministry, the Communications Ministry, the War Ministry and the Navy Ministry, in order to secure their understanding in the matter, according to advices from Japan. If permission for the project is secured, the association will set up an advance base for fishing on Saipan Island. Four cold storage sheds of 500 tons each will be built to haul the fish to Japan. The tuna catch alone is expected to amount to more than 2,000 tons a year.

SEEKS RULING ROTARY CLUB

C. W. O'Neill, Chairman of Canadian Advisory Board,
Offers Advice

At the luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club in the Empress Hotel yesterday, the resolution proposed by the executive of that body whereby local members would be protected in their membership and classification while in the war service of their country, and that Rotary International would be asked to co-operate in so far as per capita tax is required from the local clubs, and the subscriptions of such members, was endorsed. Following this it was decided that the whole question involved be referred to Rotary International for a ruling with regard to it.

The meeting yesterday had the assistance of Charles W. O'Neill, Duncan, who is chairman of the Canadian advisory committee of Rotary and who has recently been in attendance in Chicago at a meeting of the body.

He explained that there were optional courses that might be taken to test out what authority existed. One course was to refer to all district governors affected and the other was to make a direct reference to Rotary International. The latter course was agreed upon.

TOLD OF MEETING
As the speaker for the luncheon, Mr. O'Neill recalled some of the matters brought before that body, but he pointed out that recommendations made by the Canadian advisory committee had to be approved by Rotary International before coming into effect. He was not at liberty as yet to discuss them.

The matter of how smaller clubs would be able to carry on as a result of the war was upon them was a serious question. A national emergency committee, he advised, should be formed in each Canadian Club. An advisory committee should be formed to aid families of members that were serving at the front. In this connection he counselled against the taking up of work that would duplicate what was being done by a larger national body. In a case of doubt, they should confer with the district governor.

Tank Barricade on Belgian Border

Should the rumored German drive through Belgium toward Northern France occur, the invaders will not find the open country dotted with isolated fortresses through which they swept in 1914. Spanning the little country from north to south is Belgium's version of France's Maginot Line—a string of concrete and steel forts which connect with the Maginot Line on the south and sweep to the North Sea. This picture shows part of Belgium's "asparagus bed"—and tank barricade.

FIND LAUGHS IN BUDGET SPEECH

Viscountess Astor Applauds Additions to All Taxes on Alcoholic Liquor

LONDON, Sept. 28 (P)—Even the grim business of presenting a drastic war budget didn't prevent Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, from raising a laugh in the House of Commons yesterday.

Sir John announced: "First, I propose additions to all taxes on alcoholic liquor."

Viscountess Astor, a celebrated teetotaler, cried "hear, hear!" at last!

Speaking of tobacco, the Chancellor said: "This will be accompanied by corresponding increases in the other tobacco duties—on cigars."

Here he looked at Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, who is seldom seen without a stogie. Mr. Churchill didn't bat an eye.

Report Changsha In Flames Again

HONGKONG, Sept. 28 (P)—Japanese reports today said Changsha, capital of Hunan Province, was in flames again today as the advance guard of Japanese troops drove to within twenty miles of the city.

Chinese said their own forces were holding up the invaders' advance about thirty-five miles north of Changsha.

NEED VOLUNTEERS FOR EMERGENCIES

Registration of volunteers are proceeding at the Greater Victoria Civilian Protection Committee's office in the City Hall, under Councillor Capt. William Ellis. The office is open from 10 o'clock in the morning until noon daily, and may be reached through the Pandora Avenue entrance to the hall.

Councillor Ellis reported that rapid progress was being made in the organization of volunteer brigades for war emergency work throughout the city and adjoining municipalities.

Provincial authorities announced that Councillor Ellis had been named civilian protection officer for Greater Victoria, and Dr. Stewart Murray, war emergency medical health officer, Major S. F. M. Moodle is civilian protection officer for the province.

Provisions for siren alarms to warn the population in case of a serious emergency, and arrangements for a complete blackout on notice are at present under consideration.

"SECOND FIDDLE" COMING TO ATLAS

Sonja Henie, Tyrone Power, Rudy Vallee and Edna May Oliver
All in Cast

Tyrone Power's new songs, Sonja Henie's sunny brilliance, Tyrone Power's gay romancing, Rudy Vallee's singing and Edna May Oliver's fun—one of the greatest combinations of talent ever gathered for one show—are combined in "Second Fiddle," which will open today at the Atlas Theatre.

For the first time on the screen Sonja Henie has a skating partner on the ice, young Stewart Reburn. "Second Fiddle" introduces, also, new-star, Mary Healy, included with her in the cast are Lyle Talbot and Alan Dinehart.

"THE OLD MAID" IS STIRRING TALE

Bette Davis and Miriam Hopkins
Have Co-Starring Roles in Dramatic Picture

A drama that will linger long in the memory of all who see it is "The Old Maid," which will open at the Capitol Theatre today, with Bette Davis and Miriam Hopkins in the starring roles.

A deeply stirring story of the curious bond of hatred that binds two women together, it is matchlessly performed by the two stars and a brilliant supporting cast.

Produced by Warner Bros., the new film is a worthy successor to such recent triumphs as "Juarez," "Dark Victory" and "Daughters Courageous," from the same studio.

HEDY LAMARR AND TAYLOR CO-STAR

Talented Artists Make First Appearance Together in "Lady of the Tropics"

Robert Taylor and Hedy Lamarr play the leading roles in "Lady of the Tropics," which will open at the Dominion Theatre today.

For the first co-starring picture for two of the most dynamic personalities to skyrocket to fame in motion pictures in recent years, a love story was chosen that has been elected as ideal for their respective abilities, with Taylor seen as a young American adventurer and Miss Lamarr as a mysterious beauty of the East.

The setting of the story, written especially for the new team by Ben Hecht, takes place in the heart of the Orient.

BENEFIT CONCERT PLANNED TONIGHT

Well-Known Artists Contributing Their Services to Assist Patsy Swift

Tonight the Patsy Swift benefit concert will be held in the Empire Theatre, commencing at 8:30 o'clock. Many of Victoria's outstanding artists have volunteered to assist. With the well-known generosity of the theatre world, the distinguished English Shakespearean players, Alan Wilkie, C.B.E., and Miss Hunter-Watts have offered their services.

Miss Swift has recently been awarded the valuable and highly-esteemed Commonwealth School of Music scholarship in Chicago. Funds are required for living expenses during the period of this scholarship, and the committee earnestly asks everyone to support this community effort and assist in a practical way the young Victoria singer who has been so signally honored.

PLAZA The picture, "Winter Theatre Carnival," now showing at the Plaza Theatre, is a story of college life and romance and appropriately most of the leading players in the cast are college graduates. Amongst them are Ann OAK BAY Priscilla Lane sings in THEATRE a film for the first time in a year when she warms "They Say" to John Garfield's accompaniment, in their latest Warner Bros. picture, "Daughters Courageous," now showing at the Oak Bay Theatre. The male roles are in the capable hands of John Garfield, Jeffrey Lynn, Claude Rains, Frank McHugh, Donald Crisp and Dick Foran.

COLUMBIA Two scenes unusual to the average Western action film are features of the "Lone Star Pioneer," which stars Bill Elliott at the Columbia Theatre today. An entire stage was needed to house the huge hideout headquarters of the vicious "guerrilla" gang which Elliott, as a United States marshal, succeeds in bringing to justice.

PIANIST IS ACCORDED ENTHUSIASTIC OVATION

"Arthur Benjamin won the admiration of a great audience at the Hotel Vancouver on Friday evening and was accorded a most enthusiastic ovation. The noted British pianist-composer gave a recital of a standard of excellence rarely heard in Vancouver and one which will long be remembered by all those present. He played a programme which appealed equally to those who appreciate the fine points of the pianistic art, and those who simply love listening to good music. It was a well-conceived programme, including the classics, romantics and the moderns."

The above is taken from a press report of Arthur Benjamin's recent concert in Vancouver. Mr. Benjamin is playing here for the Musical Art Society at the Empress Hotel next Monday and a capacity audience is anticipated.

Probe Wage Matters

Working conditions at the city's electric street lighting plant are under consideration, according to Alderman T. W. Hawkins, chairman of the committee in charge. He stated recommendations regarding the wages of several employees would be made in the near future.

Alderman John A. Worthington declined to comment on a report of the special wage committee prepared last month but not yet presented to the council. Mayor Andrew McGavin suggested that prevailing war conditions might have a material effect on the salary issue.

NEW RADIOS READY FOR TELEVISION

Provision Made for Attachments When Visual Broadcasts Are Made

The board of directors of the Radio Manufacturers' Association in its annual convention recently authorized its president, A. H. Wells, to make the following statement on television for the association and the industry.

The membership of the Radio Manufacturers' Association includes practically all the United States makes of the television sets. No group has a greater stake in the development of television. No group has a greater faith in the future of this art or a firmer belief in its eventual growth from this experimental stage to that of one of the country's great services.

They would like to present television to the whole country, but because of the many problems involved it will be a long time before such a reality can be achieved. They feel that this statement is necessary because television has suffered from overstatement, and because the inauguration of television in New York may arouse an ungrounded hope in the minds of the people throughout the country.

In all probability, over 90 per cent of the geographical area of the United States will not be served for some time to come. For the economic questions are serious ones and will have to be solved by broadcasters in the future. Even where television is available, it must be remembered that for technical reasons it can only be received through the optional horizon.

DISTANCE LIMITED

The average useful reception distance from the antenna on top of the Empire State Building in New York, the world's tallest building, is only fifty miles. This means that the horizon, or useful distance, from many buildings is only a few miles less in height than the Empire State Building will be considerably less than that available in New York.

Programmes for some time to come will of necessity be limited to at best a few hours a day. Even where television is available or may become available, it must be considered as a supplemental service to radio broadcasting, and will not render the modern radio set obsolete.

The new General Electric 1940 radio line is equipped with a television connection on most models so that a television receiver can be connected when television broadcasting is available in Canada.

BEAMSCOPE

The General Electric Company, after years of research, has developed a revolutionary type of antenna called the Beamscope. This antenna is built into the radio set, and in favorable locations eliminates the necessity of an outside aerial and ground connection. This new and exclusive General Electric development is a highly efficient, self-contained antenna circuit completely surrounded by a metal screen. It reduces local static disturbances and objectionable noises, permitting a more interference-free radio beam to the receiver. The antenna is directed to the receiver circuit for finer, quieter reception. By eliminating aerial and ground connections, the radio can be changed to any part of the room when a different arrangement of the furniture is desired.

The Beamscope built-in antenna used on the seven and eight-tube models obviates the use of an outside aerial in suitable locations. Phonograph connections are available on all but one model, whereby the set can be converted readily into a phonograph-combination simply by plugging a record player provided for this purpose, whereby you can play your favorite records through your radio set.

BAND SPREAD TUNING

Band spread short-wave tuning has been included in a seven-tube set for the first time. This feature is usually found only on the larger higher-priced models, and is now available in a popular-priced set. This feature enables the user to tune in short wave with the same ease as the standard broadcast.

Cabinets are smartly styled in a variety of models. The new edge lighted glass dials provide a beautiful appearance and effectively indicate all dial markings in daylight or darkness. All-wave models with automatic tuning now are offered in five and six tubes at prices lower than formerly set for standard band models.

An automatic station timer is available, which turns your radio on and off automatically and tunes in whatever programme you select on your favorite station throughout a twelve-hour period. Suppose you

Belgium Ready to Resist Invasion

With German troops reported to be massing on the Belgian border, that country, fearful that the invasion of 1914 may be repeated, is hurriedly preparing its defences to withstand any invading force. King Leopold, who has taken over control of the army, is shown as he inspected a tank near the German border.

General Electric Sets For the New Season Shown

MORE than fifty dealers and salesmen were shown the 1940 General Electric Radios, Tuesday, at the Empress Hotel, at a dinner meeting. At the dinner, H. C. Darroch, manager of the home appliance division for Canadian General Electric at Vancouver, was chairman. "The 1940 General Electric 'Magic Tone' radios," he said, "are designed to put owners 'in tune with today' in beautiful cabinet styling, brilliance of tone, better performance, more features, world-wide reception and greater value for the money."

have two particular programmes you want to listen to on your favorite station, one at 6 to 6:30 p.m. and the other 8 to 9 p.m.; merely tune in your favorite station and simply adjust the fifteen-minute contact key from 6 to 6:30 and from 8 to 9, and then forget all about it. At the appointed hour the automatic station timer will turn the set on and bring in the programmes you have pre-selected perfectly and automatically. At the conclusion of each programme, it turns off without your moving from your easy chair. It is available to operate on all models.

ADMINISTRATOR NAMED FOR CHARITIES ACT

OTTAWA, Sept. 28 (C.P.)—The Government announced today that W. Gordon Gunn, solicitor in the companies branch of the State Department, has been appointed administrator of the War Charities Act passed at the special session of Parliament.

Under the act all war charity funds must be registered with the Secretary of State and no funds may be solicited without a permit.

SERVICE DRESS TO BE CHANGED

Canadian Troops to Have Uniforms Similar to New British Type

Radical changes in the service dress of Canadian soldiers will be made in the near future, for the men of the active service force are to have the new-type uniforms, with open-necked tunics, soft hats, and canvas gaiters, which were introduced in England some time ago.

Notification of the change that is to be made when supplies of the new uniforms are available has been received by Brigadier J. C. Stewart, district officer commanding, Military District No. 11. It is not known when the new uniforms will be received, but military headquarters have been advised that delivery will shortly begin, and will continue as rapidly as cloth can be obtained.

WINDBREAKER JACKETS

In place of the old-style high-necked tunics, the soldiers will be issued jackets, of the windbreaker type for use in districts where the climatic conditions warrant the change. It is believed possible that the new tunics will be without brass buttons, though nothing is known definitely on that score.

The new hats will be of a type that can be rolled up and carried in the pocket when not in use. Slacks will be issued to the troops, and will be worn with canvas gaiters, instead of puttees.

Military headquarters have also been advised by the Department of National Defence that instructions have been given for greatcoats to be issued to all personnel, and that they are permitted to be worn where necessary by troops still in civilian dress.

Contracts have been let for ample supplies of socks, underclothing, blankets, and boots, and deliveries are being hastened.

CASES AGAINST HINDUS DROPPED

Government Decides to Suspend Deportation Proceedings as Act of Grace

OTTAWA, Sept. 28 (C.P.)—Deportation proceedings against a number of Hindus in Canada, a source of controversy for some months, have been suspended indefinitely, subject to good conduct, Hon. T. A. Crerar, Resources Minister, announced today.

This action results from investigations made following the work of a board of review appointed in March, 1938, to investigate illegal immigration entries on the Pacific Coast, the minister added.

Mr. Crerar explained that illegal entries from India ceased about seven years ago, due to careful issue and checking of passports and immigration documents, and more thorough examination at Canadian ports.

TWENTY-FIVE INVOLVED

"Where illegal entry was the only difficulty, it has been decided as an act of grace to allow these British subjects to remain in Canada," he said. The number involved is approximately twenty-five.

The minister emphasized that favorable treatment would not extend to any new arrivals, if further attempts are made at illegal entry. "Similar consideration is not being extended to other nationals," he said.

Dr. D. P. Pandia, former private secretary to Mahatma Gandhi and member of the National Congress of India, who has spent the last three months here negotiating the issue with the Government, was heartily appreciative of the Government's decision.

URGES CHANGE IN LIGHT RATE COST

Letter to Mayor Charges Unfairness in Present Floor Area Computation Basis

Small home owners and tenants are not benefited by the floor area basis of computing electric light rates, according to a letter received by Mayor Andrew McGavin from F. W. Patton, 50 Howe Street.

Mr. Patton wanted to know why the floor area of a dwelling should have any bearing on the charge for electricity when the B.C. Electric was protected by meters and a minimum charge for current.

He suggested that the City Council franchise committee urge abolition of the floor area system with substitution of a straight meter charge of 21-2 or 3 cents per kilowatt hour.

In a table attached to his letter, Mr. Patton explained that a 1,000 square-foot dwelling consuming

What Today Means

"LIBRA"

If September 29 is your birthday, the best hour for you this date is from 9 to 11 a.m., from 1 to 3 p.m., and from 7 to 9 p.m. The danger periods are from 7 to 9 a.m. from 5 to 7 p.m., and from 9 to 11 p.m.

This is a poor day for suggesting or making radical changes in any kind of routine work, so think before putting new ideas into effect. Glib people, in all likelihood, will fall victims to their joke-loving friends, and pranks are apt to be one of the day's prevailing nuisances. It may take very little to start tongues wagging, so be circumspect in what you say and do. If you give some persons an inch they will take the whole yard, so be careful what latitude you allow anyone who might take advantage of it. Poor ventilation will be responsible for drowsiness this day, and those who succumb to it are liable to find themselves placed in a very embarrassing position. Married and engaged couples, and those whom Cupid has brought together, may find "an honest confession is good for the soul," especially if a mistake in judgment has been made.

If a woman, and September 29 is your birthday, industrious and very persistent, you should have little difficulty in overcoming obstacles and accomplishing your objective in life. Remember that Friday should invariably prove to be the most favorable day of the week for you to transact business or engage in social activities. You are apt to become one of Lady Luck's favored protégés. The closer you get to Mother Nature, the better off you will be physically, so indulge in long walks and outdoor sports. As a newspaper correspondent, a magazine contributor, lecturer, model, interior decorator, florist or sales agent you ought to find congenial and profitable work. Marriage has, apparently, far more to offer you in the way of happiness than has "single blessedness." The child born on September 29 is generally a fluent talker and entertaining companion by being a witty commentator. An artistic nature is likely to be discernible in this youngster at an early age. Children born on this date must be encouraged to take advantage of the educational opportunities that are offered it.

If a man, and September 29 is your natal day, you are fond of companionship, social activities, and a limited number of out-of-door recreations. Trips to the seashore or mountains ought to be very beneficial to you. As an educator, doctor, botanist, mining, civil, mechanical or chemical engineer, author, salesman, manufacturer, artist or inventor you may become very successful.

LABELS TO GO

Labels which have decorated windshields of cars since the war began are going to disappear. Local authorities urged their removal. Every other car has had a sticker "A.R.P." or "Food-Urgent" or "Auxiliary Fire Service." One woman driver retorted by labeling her car "Just Me."

Court of Appeal Victoria Sittings

Kennedy et al. (R.) vs. Union Estates, Ltd. (A.)—Judgment was reserved by the Court of Appeal yesterday morning in this case at the conclusion of argument by counsel.

Tatroff (R.) vs. Ray (A.)—This was an appeal against an order of Justice Murphy in Supreme Court Chambers in Vancouver giving leave to Tatroff to take proceedings under the Mortgagees' and Purchasers' Relief Act against the defendant, Ray. Ray appeared on the ground that Mr. Justice Murphy had signed the order without hearing from counsel. The Court of Appeal dismissed the appeal, holding that the learned Supreme Court judge had full discretion to sign the order when he did.

Appeal dismissed.

G. L. Fraser for the appellant; H. C. Locke, K.C. for the respondent.

Lim Dong Shee (A.) vs. Lim Hin Jack (R.)—The plaintiff transferred an interest in a restaurant business to the defendant, allegedly with the intention of defeating future creditors. She then sought to have the property retransferred. The defendant refused and he was upheld in the County Court at Vancouver. Judge Harper ruled that since this was a fraudulent transaction, the court would assist neither party.

The plaintiff appealed.

F. A. Jackson, for appellant, contended that there were no creditors to be defrauded. The intention to defeat creditors did not, therefore, come to fruition. The action, therefore, was not tainted with illegality and plaintiff was entitled to return of her property. J. R. Nicholson, for respondent, said this transaction as between the parties was not void, and neither party could get the property back or any profits thereunder.

Judgment was reserved.

F. A. Jackson for the appellant; J. R. Nicholson for the respondent.

DERRINGER PITCHES CINCINNATI TO THE PENNANT

Californian Riders Chalk Up Thrilling Victory Over Locals

Fred Hempler and Louie Rondoni Nose Out Eric Whitehead and Neil Duval by Two Sprint Points in International Cycling Classic

By the slim margin of two sprint points, Fred Hempler and Louie Rondoni, ace pedal pushers from San Jose, California, last night rode to victory in Victoria's first international one-hour match race staged at the Cyclotron, Douglas Street and Burnside Road. In second place was Eric Whitehead and Neil Duval, Victoria, while the local combination of Gordon Bell and Car Warren finished third, one lap behind the leading teams. Otto Kuhl and Carrol Poe, visitors' No. 2 team, took fourth position, two laps back. The first two squads covered twenty-four miles.

Easily the highlight of the entertaining speed programme, the team match provided thrills galore for a packed grandstand, and was in itself a six-day bicycle race in miniature. The riders used the identical changes introduced to local fans by the professional speedsters, and brought the spectators to their toes with thrilling sprint finishes at the end of each mile of riding.

There were a few spills, but the only mishap that caused any delay in the feature event came after about thirteen minutes of riding. Neil Duval, Victoria, and Otto Kuhl, San Jose, piled up at the far turn going into the back stretch, but escaped injuries. The local ace was soon mounted and riding around the saucer, but Kuhl had to go to the pits for repairs to his racing machine. Rondoni buckled his front wheel in a spill coming into the stretch, but was soon back in the thick of the riding.

TAKES SPILL

Eric Whitehead, Victoria's triple British Columbia amateur champion, took a spill immediately in front of the grandstand in the last lap of the final mile of the race and landed face down on the pine saucer. He was out as cold as the evening air for a few minutes, but soon revived after receiving first aid from members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade. He was shaken up a little, but escaped without injury.

The grand finale left nothing to be desired from an angle of entertainment and clever riding by the American and local speedsters. The visiting team of Fred Hempler and Louie Rondoni, certainly a powerful combination of finished riders, won ten sprints, four more than the fine Victoria team of Eric Whitehead and Neil Duval. The local pair, however, pulled up their total sprint points by taking a number of seconds. They won six sprints.

Pat Hoole and Roy Bell, local class "B" riders, entered in the international team match, but withdrew after thirty minutes of riding when they were a lap behind. The fans gave the youngsters quite an ovation for their plucky effort against top-ranking pedal-pushers.

Complete results of the international team race follow:

M. L. Pts	Hempler and Rondoni	24	0	78
Whitehead and Duval	24 <td>0 <td>76</td> </td>	0 <td>76</td>	76
G. Bell and Warren	23 <td>10</td> <td>46</td>	10	46
Kuhl and Poe	23 <td>8</td> <td>13</td>	8	13

Hoole and Bell withdrew after riding for thirty minutes. A demonstration of six-day riding by Claude "Rusty" Peden and Lew Rush proved highly entertaining.

MATCH RACES

The match races between the four speed demons from San Jose, California, and Victoria riders, were highly interesting and closely contested. Eric Whitehead defeated Fred Hempler in the opening event after breaking on top and leading all of the way, while Carrol Poe took the second race at four laps, coming from behind to defeat Car Warren. Gordon Bell and Neil Duval added further victories for the locals by scoring over Otto Kuhl and Louie Rondoni, respectively. The time for the first three match races was 49, but speedy Neil Duval covered the distance in 45.

In the semi-finals Poe took the honors from Eric Whitehead, but Bell and Duval raced to a dead heat. Carrol Poe (San Jose), Gordon Bell and Neil Duval went into the final with Duval scoring a grand victory. Poe was second and Bell third. The winner took the lead on the back stretch the first time going around the saucer and was never headed.

Other results follow:

Pastor Down in Bout With Joe Louis

Bob Pastor proved himself a worthy challenger for the heavyweight title before going down under the fists of Champion Joe Louis in the eleventh round. Pastor, down and almost out in the first round, came back to fight the champion as no other challenger has, and outscored a capacity crowd at Detroit by his courage and skill. The finish in the eleventh round is shown as Referee Spike Hennessey pushes Louis away and starts counting. Pastor tried, but was unable to rise.

Senior Boxla Finals to Open Here This Evening

James Bay Will Battle Alert Service in Initial Clash At Victoria Sports Centre—Saanich Young Liberals and Bakerymen Meet in Curtain-Raiser

With every member of his squad in good condition and ready for a great fight, Manager Ted Menzies' James Bay stickhandlers are taking things easy today prior to this evening's championship boxla battle with the Alert Service. The clubs will open their best-of-three series for the city championship tonight at the Victoria Sports Centre, the game getting under way at 8:45 o'clock.

McLean's Bakery, one of the most improved aggregations of gutted artists in the city, and Saanich Young Liberals will cross sticks in the preliminary encounter at 7:15 o'clock. Still smarting from the setback they received Wednesday at the hands of the bakerymen—their first this season—the suburbanites will be out for revenge when the teams take the floor to do battle in the final fixture of the juvenile play-downs. The spoils of victory will be the city championship.

SENIOR BATTLE

The senior finals promise to be keenly contested with the heavier and more experienced Bays getting the edge over the lighter servicemen. However, Manager Ted Menzies' proteges cannot afford to take the Alerts too lightly in the coming series. Conservatives found that out twice during the week, and today they are on the sidelines, a beaten club.

One thing is certain, the servicemen are at their peak at this stage and their followers feel confident they will continue their march to the championship by taking the measure of the James Bay aggregation. A few of the servicemen came out of the preliminary with slight bruises, but reports from their camp late last night indicated they are ready for battle.

YANKS HAVE STRONG TRIO IN OUTFIELD

DiMaggio, Selkirk and Keller Hold Big Edge Over Cincy's Fielders

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (AP)—It is customary, when giving a passing thought to the Yankees' outfield, to gasp "Joe DiMaggio" with proper awe and assume the whole case closed.

Giuseppe is something out of a story book, sure enough, but the edge the world champions will have on the Cincinnati Reds' outfield in the world series next week stems nearly as much from George (Twinkles) Selkirk and Charles Keller as from DiMaggio.

The truth is Manager Joe McCarthy has the best-balanced, free-hitting, free-wheeling outfield patrol in the business. It is the only one 300-hitting array and the only one that stacks up without a serious defensive weakness.

The fabulous DiMaggio currently is hitting .384 and as an all-around good fellow at his trade the present baseball generation has no one to compare with him.

Selkirk, thirty-one-year-old veteran of five campaigns with the champions, is batting .308, and rookie Charley Keller, who couldn't earn a regular berth until mid-season, is traveling at a 334 pace.

FINE AVERAGE

Together these three have hit sixty home runs, half of them by DiMaggio, and batted in 302 runs, 125 by the Yankee Clipper. In 787 fielding chances accepted by the combination, only fourteen errors have been made for the high-class percentage of .982.

In contrast to this super-powered machine, the outfield is the only department that has given Will McLean trouble all season, because his left field tenants have moved in and out as often as they lived in a trailer.

The Reds are well stocked and well paid for at the other positions. Defensively Harry Craft, in centre, and Ival Goodman, in right, can romp with the best, and Goodman is a consistent hitter with a .325 average.

In left field it looks like the Reds will have to stand or fall with waddling Wally Berger, who covers his territory on a dime and hits a long ball—more often than not a long out. His batting average is .260 and his fielding average .967, one of the worst in the majors.

The three more or less regular Reds have batted in 189 runs and produced thirty-three homers.

REDS DEFEAT CARDS 5-3 IN FINAL GAME OF DECIDING SERIES

Veteran Righthander Turns In Fine Victory to Clinch Flag—To Oppose Yankees in First Game Of World Series Next Wednesday—New York Giants Take Pair From Phillies

By The Canadian Press
There was joy in Cincinnati last night, for the Reds finally staggered through to a 5-3 victory over the Cardinals and won for their city its first National Baseball League pennant in twenty years.

In qualifying to tackle the Yankees in the world series starting next Wednesday at New York, Bill McKechnie's boys increased their margin over St. Louis to three and one-half games, with only three contests remaining to be played at Pittsburgh, starting tomorrow.

It was a weird victory the champions scored today before 17,421 fans. Big Paul Derringer, ringing up his twenty-fifth triumph, was slugged for a total of fourteen hits, while the Reds were collecting eight safeties off three Cardinal marksmen.

And, stranger still, Derringer would have allowed only one run if he had received perfect support. Shortstop Billy Myers made three errors, and two Cards who received a life on his mistakes reached home. Four Cardinals hit safely in succession in the seventh inning, yet did not score.

GREAT FINISH

So when Paul wound up his afternoon of miraculous escapes by striking out Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize to end the game and nail down the pennant, it was small wonder his jubilant teammates fell upon him and mauled him all the way to the locker room. Happy Redland fans burst upon the field, while whistles in nearby factories were tied down and left that way.

Manager Ray Blakes of the Cardinals, made his unluckiest pitching choice of the year when he entrusted the game to Max Lanier, kid southpaw recently up from Columbus. Before Blakes could get him out of there his wildness had given the Reds one run and left the bases loaded.

Derringer had the privilege of putting across what proved to be the winning run in the sixth. Just to make things doubly sure, Harry Craft blasted his thirteenth homer of the year off Bob Bowman, third St. Louis twirler, in the eighth.

The Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Bees battled through two tight pitching duels to a draw, the Bees winning the first 3-1 and the Dodgers the second 3-0.

Margaret Sutcliffe Beats Mrs. Jackson In City Golf Meet

Oak Bay Player Surprises in Championship Tournament at Uplands Course, 2 and 1—Mrs. Art Dowell Scores Easy Win Over Mary Thorne—Final This Afternoon

Moving into a three-up lead at the end of the halfway distance, Margaret Sutcliffe, Victoria Golf Club, sprang another big surprise in the semi-finals of the city championship yesterday afternoon at the Uplands course by coming through with a 2 and 1 victory over the tournament medalist and former city and British Columbia titleholder, Mrs. E. Jackson. The Oak Bay shotmaker earned the right to meet Mrs. Art Dowell, present provincial titleholder, today for the crown, which was captured last year by Peggy Hodgson. Mrs. Dowell scored an easy decision over Mary Thorne, Macanally Point Club, 8 and 6.

Mrs. Sutcliffe took the lead at the very first hole with a five after Mrs. Jackson ran into bunker trouble and wound up with a six. The Oak Bay lady captured the second when Mrs. Jackson snatched an iron close to a tree on the left side of the green. The third was halved in fives and then Mrs. Sutcliffe went three up at the fourth when she bagged another par. Mrs. Jackson found more trouble at the fifth and she now was four down with the match still in its infancy. The newcomer to local competitive golf three-putted the next green and the Uplands star won her first hole at the sixth with a five. The next was halved in fives and Mrs. Jackson took the eighth, but Mrs. Sutcliffe buried the ninth, a three, to round the turn into the back stretch, comfortably in front.

Mrs. Jackson three-putted the first hole coming in and she was four down again. After halving the seventh in threes, Mrs. Jackson rallied to win the next two with a three and a four, but she threw away the dog-leg fourteenth by missing a short putt for a half. After breaking even off the fifteenth green the former titleholder prolonged the battle with a three at the short sixteenth, but a pair of fours halved the next and the match was all over. Mrs. Sutcliffe needed a five on the last hole for an 82 and Mrs. Jackson the same figure for an 83.

EASY VICTORY

In the other semi-final match, Mrs. Dowell's experience and commonsense proved too much for the young Esquimalt player. Mrs. Thorne completely lost her putting touch. Mrs.

PIE TRAYNOR QUILTS SQUAD

Resigns as Manager of Pittsburgh Pirates—Frisch Mentioned

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 28 (AP)—Harold (Pie) Traynor, one of baseball's greatest third basemen and manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates for five years, resigned today as the sixth-place Buccaneers neared the end of their poorest season since 1917.

The club announced a successor had not been named, but persistent reports said Frankie Frisch, the Fordham flash and former manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, would step into Traynor's shoes. Frisch's radio sponsor recently announced he had not renewed his contract as a baseball announcer at Boston because he would manage a major league club next season.

The thirty-nine-year-old Traynor, who has been with the Pirates as player and manager since 1920, will stay with the club, probably as an assistant to Joe Schulte, in handling the Bucs' farm interests in the minor leagues.

Traynor, whose team cracked up last year when the National League pennant was within its grasp, said he was quitting because of the club's low position and added:

"I believe that a change in managers will put the club up where it belongs and give the fans of the Pittsburgh district a better brand of baseball."

President William E. Bensawer expressed "keen regret" in accepting the resignation, effective at the end of the season Sunday.

LAST WORD

He was a hard-headed Yorkshireman, noted for his shrewdness over business deals. When the doctor had to be called in to his wife the first thing he asked was if the illness was likely to be a long one.

"Yes, I'm afraid it's very serious," said the doctor misanthropically. "Then I'll give you four pounds, kill or cure," said the man, "and no more you'll get. Will you take that?"

The doctor agreed. Unfortunately the patient died and the doctor sent in his bill for four pounds.

"I'm not paying that," said the man.

"Well, it was your own arrangement," said the doctor. "and you'll pay or go to court."

All right," said the Yorkshireman, "go to court and prove that you've earned it by either curing her or killing her, and I'll pay—but you did not cure her."

HIS CHRISTMAS CUSTOMER

A genial and hospitable innkeeper posed as Father Christmas. An enormous pork pie graced the bar counter and customers were invited to help themselves. One Christmas Eve a stranger walked in, sat down, and cut a huge slice. Half an hour later the man was still eating, and the landlord could stand it no longer.

"You'll excuse me," he remarked, tapping him on the shoulder, "but I don't remember your face. You're not a customer."

"Pardon me," was the polite response as the stranger helped himself to another slice. "I was here last Christmas Eve and with his mouth full of pie, if all goes well I shall be here next!"

ARCHIBALD KEEPS TITLE

Scores Victory Over Jeffra In Featherweight Championship Bout

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—Joey Archibald, featherweight boxing champion of the world, successfully defended his crown tonight by winning the decision in a fifteen-round fight with Harry Jeffra, of Baltimore.

Benny Leonard, retired lightweight champion of the world, who refereed the fight, voted for Archibald. The two judges, Frank Schuler and Dr. O. U. Singer, split. Schuler cast his ballot for the champion, Singer voted for Jeffra.

The rooting crowd threw newspapers into the ring for five minutes.

The first round was featured by boxing and hugging and very little slugging. Archibald lashed out at the challenger, midway in the second, jarring him with rights and lefts to the head. Jeffra returned the blows and shook up Archibald.

For the next six rounds they chopped away at each other without damage on either side.

The tenth saw Harry start with a stinging right, and Joey came in with a jarring right to the jaw. Near the end of the eleventh round Harry caught Archibald with a right and a glancing left.

Joey whacked Jeffra with a right and a left at the last round opened. They both looked frequently as each tried desperately for a knockout.

Spider Armstrong, 124-1-2, Montreal, Canada, won the nod over Marcus Pitts, 123, Washington, in the scheduled six-round semi-final.

Captures Honors At Hudson's Bay Golf Tournament

Playing at the Uplands Golf Club during the week, W. Flett captured the Hudson's Bay Company golf championship from a large field of starters. The winner takes possession of the handsome trophy donated by A. J. Watson, manager of the store. Tommy O'Connell and G. Carson were the flight winners. Miss D. Sykes won the A. E. S. Warrington Trophy in the women's division, and Miss D. Hill was the runner-up.

After the tournament a banquet was held in the clubhouse. The trophies and other prizes were presented by F. V. Sellers, president of the Beaver Club.

PITT ARRIVES FOR BIG GAME

SEATTLE, Sept. 28 (AP)—Pittsburgh's flying Panthers landed here at 5:30 p.m. today to complete the first major transcontinental "fling" flight of a collegiate football squad. The two big air liners, which flew today from Helena, Mont., had barely touched ground when the head coach, Charles Bowser, ordered the thirty-four players to the Washington Stadium for an evening workout in preparation for Saturday's game against the Washington Huskies. He said they had worked out this morning on a snow-covered field at Helena.

CANADA YEAR
BOOK READYOfficial Publication Contains Wealth of Valuable Up-
To-Date Information

The publication of the 1939 edition of The Canada Year Book, published by authorization of the Hon. W. D. Fisher, Minister of Trade and Commerce, is announced by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The Canada Year Book is the official statistical annual of the country and contains a thoroughly up-to-date account of the natural resources of the Dominion and their development, the history of the country, its institutions, its demography, the different branches of production, trade, transportation, finance, education, etc.—in brief, a comprehensive study within the limits of a single volume of the social and economic condition of the Dominion. This new edition has been thoroughly revised throughout and includes in all its chapters the latest information available up to the date of going to press.

The 1939 Canada Year Book extends to over 1,200 pages, published in 12 parts, each of 100 pages, with all phases of the national life and more especially with those susceptible of statistical measurement. A statistical summary of the progress of Canada is included in the introductory matter. This gives a picture in figures of the remarkable progress which the country has made since the first census of the Dominion was taken in 1871, sixty-eight years ago.

ROYAL VISIT PICTURES

In commemoration of the Royal visit to Canada, May 17 to June 15, 1939, color plates of their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, together with official pictures of incidents connected with the unveiling of the National Memorial and of the Royal assent to legislation of the 1939 session of Parliament, appear as frontispieces. A short account of the Royal tour across Canada is also included.

GROCER—FROM THE WHOLE-
SALE WHO SOLD BY THE GROSS

Today's "grocer" will sell you almost any foodstuff and in as small a quantity as you wish; but like many other things, it used to be different.

For the "grocer" was at first a wholesaler, who sold tea, sugar, spices, coffee and various other commodities only by the gross, a hundred or more at a time.

Even more pointed is this conclusion when it is observed that the early grocer and the modern "grocer" are anglicizations of the French grossier from gross, large.

As cities grew and there arose the need for a retail merchant, the grocer accommodated.

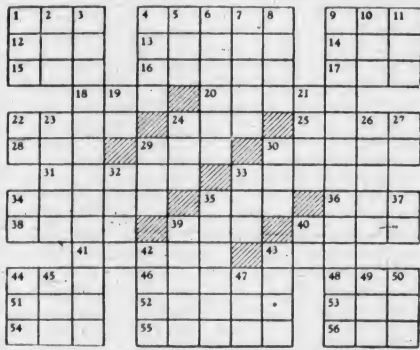

The change in the spelling of his name, too, was quite uncalculated; the result merely, of that evolution of form as well as sense that goes on constantly in words, which, in the very process of jelling are undergoing change.

T. J. GOODLAKE WILL AGAIN MAKE HIS HOME IN VICTORIA CITY

T. J. Goodlake, who for many years was a resident of this city but who found it necessary for business reasons to take up his residence in England, is again back in Victoria. Accompanied by Mrs. Goodlake and family, he announces that he will again make his home in Victoria. Mr. Goodlake has no fault to find with his native England, but after residing in Victoria for some considerable time, he is glad to return and make his home here again.

For many years Mr. Goodlake was secretary of the Rotary Club in this city and yesterday he took occasion to again visit the club, where he was accorded a wonderful reception. When introduced to the members of the club by President Walter Luney, Mr. Goodlake was heartily applauded. He expressed his satisfaction at being back again among the many close friends he had formed.

Sir John told the House of Commons that "the whole problem of lighting restrictions is under review in light of the knowledge gained during the first few weeks' experience of blackout conditions, and I hope to be in a position to make the results of this review known in the near future."

LADYSMITH TO CONSIDER PLAN

No Action Taken on Victoria's Scheme of Conscripting During War

LADYSMITH, Sept. 28.—The City Council here has tabled for two weeks a resolution from Victoria urging complete conscription of Canada's national resources, materials, plants, money, other forms of wealth and all personal services. While the aldermen agreed with the idea that equality of sacrifice should be demanded in a time of national emergency, such as now exists, Alderman Vandecastey suggested the principles involved were too intricate to be disposed of in a brief study. He asked that the resolution be considered for two weeks and action taken at the next meeting, and the council agreed.

Mayor Walkem pointed out voluntary enlistments were dropping because, as he had heard it expressed, numerous aliens, neither registered nor naturalized, were scrambling for the jobs vacated by patriotic Canadians, and he agreed with the council's idea that if the country was good enough to live in, the so-called neutral alien should be treated as a first measure in the demand for sacrifice.

As rubber prices were advancing and other supplies going up, the council decided to place purchases for the year on order, before the price changes upset budget calculations. The new asphalt spraying machine acquired by the city has been in operation and the demonstration proving satisfactory, the machine was ordered purchased along with asphalt.

A flat charge of $2 annually for fire protection on outside municipal points has been accepted by forty district residents, and passed by the council. Non-subscribers to the agreement who call for the services of the city fire department, will be charged $10, plus the costs of turning out the brigade.

WILL START WORK

The first unit of work for improvement of Market Square, under the Dominion-Provincial works plan, will commence immediately, with the sponsor providing all materials and the two Governments all labor cost. James King, chairman of the new park board, presented a sketch plan of the improvement, which involves a cost of $2,441.65. Alderman Jameson, chairman of the finance committee, remarked he wanted it thoroughly understood the council would finance no further commitments at this stage. Delinquency in payment of taxes and services was again becoming serious and he wanted a "pay-as-you-go" plan to prevail.

Trustee Vandecastey, chairman of the school board, was permitted to give a resume of school building and repairs made during the year. After a brief discussion, the council endorsed the work and passed the accounts.

Second: "Go in and finish him this time."
Heavyweight: "I can't see him."
"Then hit him from memory."

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

ACTION SHOOTING

A subject such as this will make a good "action sequence"—a series of pictures showing the complete toss, step by step. Pose your subject in "slow motion," and it's easy.

Interesting action "sequences" can be made in the manner just described. For example, a series of a young woman tossing a beach ball. Two or three shots of the swing each at a different point; a fourth with the ball barely supported by her finger tips; a fifth with her arms fully extended and the ball out of the picture. Such a sequence is easily obtained if the subject goes through the action very slowly several times—and it is surprisingly effective when the pictures are mounted in proper order in your album.

All action shooting, take care not to become excited, or you may press the shutter release too jerkily—moving the camera and blurring the shot. When taking a posed-action shot, of a subject that will stay in one place, it's often a good idea to put the camera on a tripod or some other firm support.

Try your hand at action shots—including a few sequences such as that outlined above. It's interesting photography—and good, lively shots of this type add spice to your album.—John Van Gulder.
